Another Hughes will reported

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A second purported Howard Hughes will, this one bequeathing the billionaire's estate to relatives, a variety of charitable causes, and 10 "living Americans" identified only by Social Security number, was filed with the Clark County clerk Tuesday.

The document was filed by officials of the Summa Corp.

It does not state the total value of the estate.

The three-page, neatly handwritten document, dated June 22, 1969, was received in the mail Tuesday by the clerk's office. It was addressed to the Summa Corp., care of Clark County clerk. The return address read "Hughes Tool Co., Houston, Tex."

Summa Corp. was set up by Hughes to run his multibilliondollar holdings.

Assistant Clerk Elda Hanks said she turned the unopened envelope over to Summa executive Jim Cullen. The document was later filed by William Morse, a Nevada attorney for Summa, and Wayne Williams, a trust officer of the First National Bank of Nevada, Hughes estate administrator in Nevada.

Although the document contained few, if any, of the misspellings apparent in a purported will delivered nearly two weeks ago by representatives of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), at least two anomalies appeared:

—Distribution "to all my blood relatives" is mentioned in two of the seven items of the document.

—The curious distribution of one-sixth of his estate to "10 living Americans" who are identified only by their Social Security numbers.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for Summa declined to comment on the new will.
